The 2013 vintage was sourced in entirety from Lewis Vineyard, nestled in the San Luis Range in the Edna Valley Appellation. Located less than five miles from the Pacific Ocean on California's Central Coast, the valley has an east/west orientation allowing for the nighttime funneling of fog that provides temperate growing conditions for Syrah. Early spring warming, mild summer temperatures and late arriving cold fall temperatures provide a long growing season for the development of deep color and complex phenolic development. It has been said among industry professionals that Syrah likes a view. Syrah thrives on hillsides where soils are sparse, reducing yields and concentrating flavors.
